LABOR IN POLITICS.

An Important Convention to be Held in Cincinnati

To Form a New Political Party of Workingmen

English Conservatives in Conference Consider the Situation.

Labor Politics

PITTSBURG February 21 —The national lab r convention which convenes in Cincinnati on Tuesday next will be largely attended from this state Many labor, greenback and independent organizations in Pennsylvania have elected delegates Among the independent organizations which will be represented is one organized here last year, which now has a strong following in Pittsburg and Allegheny over half the wards in both cities being represented on the county committee Up to the present time the work of organization has been secret and of a preliminary nature as the result of the Cincinnati convention is expected to largely shape the destinies of the local board The organization at present is made up of small business men Knights of Labor, newspaper men, trades unionists and greenbackers Quite a number of others have never voted anything before but the straight republican or democratic ticket, and the success thus far met with causes the leaders in the movement to believe that western Pennsylvania will respond enthusiastically to support the new party which is expected as the result of the Cincinnati convention The local body has adopted the name and style of the commoners party They have also adopted a preamble and platform which will be brought before the Cincinnati convention The points of the platform are as follows

1 The shifting of taxation until land values bear all taxes, and then an increase of tax for until all economic rent is appropriated to public use

2 Control by the general government of railroads and telegraphs

3 The convict penalty and self operative laws to prevent all speculations on margins

4 The abolition of all existing internal revenues.

5 A graded tax on all incomes over $5000

6 Submission to the people of all questions affecting the manufacture and sale of intoxicants.

7 The incorporation of trades unions and workingmen's associations.

8. The execution of all state laws by state authorities, to the exclusion of police and militia under private control

9 A department of labor

10 Investment of the surplus revenue in internal and defensive improvement.

11 Taxation of all corporation capital stock in excess of the actual cost of the plant.

12 Shortening of the hours of labor

13 The non holding of lands by aliens in fee simple

Conservative Conference

LONDON February 21 —A conference of the conservative party was held to-day at the foreign office The conference was largely attended by members of both the House of Commons and the House of Lords. The meeting [illegible] accompanied by Goschen Both were cheered heartily when they entered The premier, in his address to the conference, referred feelingly to the late Earl of Iddesleigh and the loss the government had incurred by reason of his death The marquis also dwelt on the secession from the government of Churchill, which the speaker described as a considerable loss to the party Goschen's acceptance of office under the present government, Salisbury said, had strengthened the conservative party "After tracking me for a month," continued the marquis "we have arrived at serious business" He then said he hoped the government would be able by reforming the rules of procedure to restore to the commons its capacity for work and its reputation for courtesy, after which, he added he shall be able to deal with questions of local government in Ireland and other measures [Loud cheers] "I hope," he said, "that the present law will be sufficient to enable the authorities to cope successfully with disorder in Ireland In any case all bills will be postponed until after the conclusion of proceedings for reform of procedure rules and action on estimates. The government expects to present the budget during the first week in April" The marquis predicted long lease of office for the conservatives

Several members urged that the government introduce in parliament a local government bill for England, Scotland and Wales, the provisions of which should be extended to Ireland Edwin DeLisle conservative member, spoke, saying that as a Roman Catholic conservative he denounced the conduct of Archbishop Croke of Cashel, Ireland, in openly encouraging the conduct of the Irish National League, and said he would like to have the archbishop tried for this conduct by a jury of English Catholics in London This statement provoked great enthusiasm in the conference.

Progress of the Boston Strike

BOSTON, February 21 Cambridge railroad officials, in no way discouraged by the events of yesterday, ran this afternoon without molestation Police were present in large force.

On the corner of Knee and and Federal streets stands a four-story brick residence block, containing hundreds of inhabitants of the lowest class. Narrow stairs run from both streets to the roof furnishing opportunities for ingress and egress that have often baffled the police On top of this building arranged in heaps just inside the narrow and wooden coping was found by the police a miscellaneous assortment of bricks and paving stones It is thought they were to be used for an attack upon the cars which pass the building— The possibilities of an attack of this nature upon the cars if that was the object aimed at are simply awful to contemplate A shower of bricks descending from this height upon crowded horse cars under the cloak of darkness would have been murderous in result, with slight possibility of tracing the perpetrators The South Boston road was at once notified and so the cars were taken off each night, despite public inconvenience, and police stationed in the vicinity

Claims Against Colombia

WASHINGTON, February 21 —The president to-day sent to the house the response of the secretary of state in reply to a resolution inquiring as to the action taken by the department of state to protect the interests of American citizens whose property was destroyed by fire caused by insurgents at Aspinwall in 1885 The secretary says that negotiations were commenced in October last and are now pending between the United States and Colombia for establishing an international commission to which may be referred for adjustment the claims of citizens of the United States against the government of Colombia growing out of these insurrections, but it is not deemed compatible with public interest to communicate to congress in the present state of the negotiations correspondence between the department and the government of Colombia

Three Per Cents Called

WASHINGTON, February 21 —The acting secretary of the treasury this afternoon issued a call for ten million dollars of three per cent bonds The call will mature April 1st.

Following is a description of the bonds called Three per cent bonds issued under the act of congress approved July 12, 1882 and numbered as follows $50, original number 1 to 50 both inclusive $100 original number 3[illegible] to 374, both inclusive $500 original number 149 to 162 both inclusive, $1 000, original number 1[illegible] to 1 [illegible] both inclusive $10 000, original number 2 880 to 3 0[illegible] both inclusive, total $10 00[illegible] 750 Parties holding the bonds called by this circular can obtain immediate payment with interest to date of presentation by requesting the same in the letter forwarding the bonds for redemption

An Important Question

DENVER February 21 —An effort will be made before the supreme court in a few days to have the criminal courts of Lake, Pueblo and Arapahoe counties declared unconstitutional and all sentences pronounced by them declared illegal on the ground that the constitution does not provide for transfer of indictments from district court to criminal court for trial when such indictments were found in the grand jury of district courts If the supreme court sustains this view of the case it is estimated over one half of the convicts in the state penitentiary will be set at liberty

Taxing the Mines

DENVER, February 21 —An Aspen special to the News says At a meeting of miners and mine owners held a few nights ago concerning taxation of mines considerable discussion was indulged in but no conclusion arrived at. It seemed to be the general sentiment of the meeting that all producing mines should be taxed, if taxed at all, whether or not they are patented claims They are willing to abide by any method that is fair and just

Anti Monopolists Hold Aloof

CINCINNATI February 21 —At a meeting of the anti-monopoly league in New York tonight it was decided not to attend the conference of greenback labor men for the reason that it is the purpose of the managers of that conference to arrange for the nomination of presidential candidates, which is contrary to the policy adopted by the anti monopoly league.

Colorado's Surveyor General

DENVER, February 21 Oney Carstarphen has received his commission as surveyor general and took possession of his office to-day He appointed O F Harris chief clerk, and Miss Anna Dawson daughter of the late Surveyor General Dawson to the place vacated by Mr Harris. Mr Carstarphen will make no other appointments for the present.

Bishop Machebeuf's Coadjutor

DENVER February 21 —Rev Dr Fanning, of the Peoria, Ills diocese, is at present in Denver on business connected with the selection of a coadjutor to Bishop Machebeuf It is authoritatively stated that Dr Fanning has the choice of the appointment to the bishopric of Colorado or the new diocese of Lincoln, Neb

Awaiting the Elections

LONDON, February 21 — Merchants and shippers of this city engaged in trade with Germany are doing no business, and are awaiting with feverish anxiety the result of the elections which take place in that country

THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

Ten Millions of Three Per Cents Called In.

The Senate Vote to Incorporate the Nicaragua Canal.

Legislators in the House Discussing the Land Laws.

XLIX Congress

SENATE

WASHINGTON February 21 —The presiding officer presented petitions from a large number of Grand Army posts of Ohio for the passage of the dependent pension bill over the president's veto Laid on the table Similar petitions were also presented by several other senators

The resolution heretofore offered by Mitchell of Oregon, instructing the judiciary committee to inquire and report as to the causes of delay in resuming work on the canal and locks of the cascades in the Columbia river in the fall of 1886 and of the change in the engineer in charge of the work was taken up, and Mitchell addressed the senate in favor of the resolution In the course of his remarks he denounced the conduct of Col. John G Parke colonel of engineers, in regard to the appropriation and to the change of local engineers as unreasonable arbitrary and illegal not to say tyrannical and despotic." He said that no military satrap or dictator was ever more unreasonable, defiant or unjust than the record showed Col Parke to be in relation to this matter At the conclusion of his long speech he spoke of Col Parke as a courteous, polite gentleman and an accommodating officer, but said that he took issue in regard to his official acts He was still speaking when the presiding officer at 2 o'clock announced unfinished business, being the Nicaraguan ship canal bill

Mr Morgan offered a resolution authorizing the committee on ordnance to sit in Washington during recess and to associate with it three naval officers. Adopted

Mr Conger by unanimous consent replied to Mr Mitchell and defended Colonel Parke from the attack made upon him He intimated that the reason for the change of engineers was that the officer who was removed had undertaken to recommend a change of plans and to substitute a ship railway for a canal at The Dalles He also expressed the opinion that in the grand, eloquent, wonderful oration to which the senate had listened to, the senator from Oregon has accomplished his purpose in showing the energy with which he promoted the local and general interests of his section of the country

The senate then took up the bill to incorporate the ship canal company of Nicaragua.

Vest offered an amendment that the act shall have no force or effect until concession shall have been secured from the government of Nicaragua and shall have been submitted to and approved by congress. Rejected without division

The bill was then passed—yeas 5[illegible], nays [illegible] The bill incorporates the Maritime Canal company of Nicaragua, with principal office in New York city. The capital stock is to be not less than fifty nor more than a hundred million, ten per cent is to be payable when subscriptions to the capital stock are made, and future payments are to be made as the board of directors may determine. The aggregate of all charges, dues and towage is to be reasonable The United States is to exercise such control over the canal as provided for by the treaty with Nicaragua and not inconsistent with any treaty obligations of the United States with any power, and is to enjoy its unobstructed use (at half rates) for troops, munitions of war and mails. If stock to the amount of ten million dollars be not subscribed and ten per cent thereof actually paid in, within two years, or if work of construction shall not have actually commenced and been in progress within four years, the corporation shall be deemed to have expired by limitation

Messrs. McMillan Conger and Ransom were appointed conferees on the river and harbor appropriation bill

Mr. Riddleberger moved that in honor of the father of his country the senate adjourn over to-morrow Yeas 15, nays 4.

The senate took up the District of Columbia appropriation bill and then went into secret session and soon adjourned

HOUSE.

Randall presented a memorial of the Rhode Island Radical Peace society against expenditures for vessels and fortifications, and asking for wise statesmanship which will submit grave questions of dispute between nations to the arbitration of reason and international law Referred

Henderson of North Carolina, from the committee on elections, submitted the report of the Indiana contested election case of Kidd against Steele and it was laid over until Thursday The report, which is unanimous, confirms the right of the contestee Steele to the seat.

Cobb of Indiana then called up the conference report, a report of disagreement, on the bill repealing the pre-emption, timber-culture and desert land laws.

Stone of Missouri said that the rapid augmentation of the population of the country, the rapid decrease of the area of public lands, and the growing demand for homes had led the committee to report a measure to the house providing for repeal of the pre-emption, timber-culture and desert land laws. Under the existing law a single person could enter 160 acres under homestead, 160 acres under pre-emption, 160 acres under timber-culture and 640 acres under the desert land law, making a total of 1120 acres. The committee had considered it wiser and more humane that land should be distributed in smaller quantities to a greater number of people Outrageous, scandalous abuses had grown up under existing laws, which had been taken advantage of by cormorants and land sharks in order to secure millions of acres of public land These abuses the committee had sought to correct. The bill had gone to the senate, which had adopted a substitute for it, practically agreeing to all that the house had asked, but it had gone further and inserted several provisions to which the house conferees could not agree One of these provisions would result in confirming nine-tenths of all fraudulent titles amounting to millions of acres The senate conferees however had agreed that this proposition be eliminated The seventh section of the senate substitute permitted the entry of 320 acres of mountainous land under the homestead law Though the house conferees regarded this provision as ill advised and as establishing a new classification of public lands they had yielded this point. Another provision of the substitute made subject to private entry lands heretofore offered for sale and remaining unsold This provision had not been thoroughly discussed in conference but it was probable that agreement might have been reached upon it had it not been for irreconcilable difference of opinion among the conferees as to the eighth section of the substitute That section provided that after final proof of claimant and issuing of duplicate receiver's receipt, it shall be proved to the satisfaction of the commissioner that fraud has been entered into the title, unless it shall appear that the land had been sold or conveyed to a bona fide purchaser for a valuable consideration, the commissioner shall suspend the issuing of patent for the same and file with the attorney general request to commence proceedings to set aside such title; if in his judgment the proceedings can be maintained This action he regarded as inimical to the idea of sound legislation and of sound morals and honesty.

Mr Payson of Illinois said that politically he had never had any iota of sympathy with the man who occupied the position of commissioner of the general land office He did not stand here as Mr Sparks' defender politically, but he did know that the commissioner had been endeavoring to do his duty as an executive officer His attention had never been called to any act in the commissioner's administration of his office that he attributed to a sentiment other than that designated Replying to an objection that the bill would be in the interest of cattle companies and the assertion made in the senate that special agents never assailed titles of a cattle syndicate, he read from the record of the land office to show that recently land entries covering 3 0 530 acres claimed by cattle companies had been cancelled in a section of country which could be covered by the hand on an ordinary map of the United States. Referring to abuses which existed under the existing law he said that one cattle company, the head of which was in the gallery listening to him, owned and controlled an extent of territory 50 by 150 miles an area larger than that of the whole state of Rhode Island This company was composed largely of foreigners, and an American citizen could not rest his foot upon this large area of which government had been robbed He instanced also the Estes park entry in Colorado, the title to which was by fraud invested in the Earl of Dunraven In his verdency, when he first came to Washington, he supposed that when a thing of this kind was brought to the attention of the government officials something could be done to cause a reversal He had gone to the department of justice four different times, trying to get Mr Brewster to file a bill to set aside the title. He had not succeeded He had tried it twice in this administration, and now he was done

Mr Symes of Colorado said that the department of justice had frequently acted and that thousands and thousands of acres had been restored to the public domain in Colorado In 1877 he had been employed by the government as special counsel in suits involving land titles, and gained every one of them

Mr Payson—On account of fraud in entry?

Mr. Symes—Yes.

Mr Payson—So it seems there is some fraud in Colorado

Mr Symes stated that he had never denied it, but there was more opportunity for reform under the present system than under that favored by the committee on public lands.

Mr. Payson inquired whether the gentleman meant to intimate that the committee was not in favor of land reform.

Mr Symes retorted that the committee intimated that nobody else was Because there were some frauds in Colorado and elsewhere which the committee wished to unearth the committee wanted to put it into the hands of a crank commissioner to issue a sweeping order which would deprive honest settlers of their homes without giving them an opportunity to prove their honesty

Mr. Payson then proceeded to argue in favor of the house conferees standing firm in their position, believing that the senate proposition would be subversive of the best interests of the government and provocative of fraud He yielded to no man in his desire to stand by the man who was seeking to make a home for himself upon the western prairies Let no man say to him that by any action he would lay a straw in the way of such a man, but at the same time he stood here to-day as he stood here for six years, in the way of robbery, perjury and crime that was sweeping the land, despoiling the government of that which it should reserve and reserve to the latest generation for the benefit of the landless and homeless poor [Applause]

Mr Laird again spoke, in support of the senate amendment, which would submit the question of validity or fraud to a court of justice. A better arbitrator upon the rights of the government and the rights of the humblest citizen could not be found.

Perkins said that the gentleman from Illinois (Mr Payson) had indulged in the cry of "fraud" and had attempted to frighten the gentlemen by that spectre, but the representatives of the west would not be restrained from the discharge of their duty by such an appeal

Mr. Gilfillan of Minnesota could see no reason why the house should be afraid to give anybody a fair hearing in a court of justice

By a vote of 96 to 35 the report of the conferees was accepted

Mr Cobb then moved that the house refuse to recede from disagreement to senate amendments and agree to the request for further conference

Pending the question Mr Perkins moved that the house recede from its disagreement to section eight of the bill and consent to the same with an amendment. Rejected 65 to 95.

Mr Cobb's motion was then agreed to and a further conference ordered

It was decided that the daily hour for meeting of the house shall be 11 o'clock

Wreck of a Freight

SAN FRANCISCO February 21 —A Cisco special says Last night a west bound freight train struck a broken rail at Tamarack. Two engines and three cars left the track and knocked down a hundred feet of snow sheds. Brakeman William Kneeland was killed The engineers and firemen escaped with slight injuries. The track was speedily cleared and the road is now again opened.

The motion to disband the greenback party should have carried yesterday. It once had power and influence. It even had the democratic party for the tail of its kite. But the people of this country had too much sense to be deceived by such fallacies as its leaders put forth. The party was organized to induce this government to pay debts in a way easier than it was then paying them. It cost a little more at the time to be honest, but we are now reaping the benefit of it. During the war we sold six per cent gold bonds for about 35 in gold. This made our interest about 17 per cent. We now borrow for three per cent. We all know now that what we did in keeping the spirit of our bonds was the honest thing and as usual the best policy.

Mr Davis of Tennessee is against the prohibitory amendment now being considered in the legislature of that state. His views will go thundering down the ages cast in the following phraseology:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the House.

I think it devolves upon me as a democrat and member of the house to define my position on this resolution, which bursts like the waves of the raging sea against the everlasting summits of the liquor dealers of the state of Tennessee.

Mr. Speaker, permit me to say if this constitutional amendment is successful before the people that every man on the floor of this house now advocating its passage will sigh for a return of whisky as the caged eagle for the roar and aurora light of his mountain cataract.

The president's veto of the bill appropriating $10,000 for the distribution of seeds to the counties in Texas stricken by the late drouth will not be received with hallelujahs by the democrats of that state. They will be inclined to ask to what purpose they gave him 135,000 majority if he cannot in return consent that they shall have $10,000 worth of the agricultural department's perquisites, and of what avail it is for Texas to be the banner state of Bourbonism when so slight a request can be refused.—[Chicago Tribune.

The president appears to be pretty independent in his vetoes. He is gaining in the confidence of the country, for they show care and right mindedness. The vetoes of some of the private pension bills are crushing. One "brave and faithful" soldier got a pension through congress which Cleveland vetoed. It seems that he did not do any services, and at the time he swears he received his disabilities he was confined in jail as a deserter. There will be a great effort to pass the dependent pension bill over his veto, but it will not succeed. There ought to be some way, however, of helping soldiers who fought and were not injured in the army, and are now dependent. But this bill was too sweeping.

Horace Greeley in his political economy said some good things about labor and capital. He does not believe in the antagonism said to exist, because there is no laboring class. The laboring men who have industry and talent are soon employers! This is the way he thinks of those who do not advance: "I do not like to hear a man boast that he has "been a hireling these twenty or thirty years, "and expects to remain such till death; for, "though it be true that no man should be "ashamed of a humble position, I qualify the "statement by the proviso that he has had no "fair opportunity to rise above it. A true man "will much prefer to shoulder a hod or sweep "streets rather than eat the bread of idleness "and dependence; but, either our political "institutions are mistakes, or a hale, two-"handed person, who has not been pulled "down by unavoidable misfortune, should be "ashamed that, having had twenty years' con-"trol of his own time and faculties, he still finds "hod-carrying or street-sweeping the best "thing he is asked or enabled to do. If I had "had a fair chance to do for myself for even "twenty years, and could now find no better "employment than the rudest and coarsest "day labor, I should accept the situation, but "not be inclined to brag of it."

Congress seems to be running wild in the expenditure of money for army and navy armament. If the bills that have passed one of the two houses, and the bills that have been reported favorably from the senate or house committees become laws this session, the amount of the appropriations will amount to nearly $100,000,000. When this is expended, it will be found that the improvements in the building of vessels, in guns and torpedoes, will make most of this expenditure useless. The large surplus is simply making congress wildly extravagant. Many years ago this country decided not to compete with European nations in a war establishment. Events have shown the wisdom of our policy. There is less need of a navy now than ever. Our shipping laws keep vessels sailing under the American flag off the seas and there is no shipping to protect compared with what we had up to 1860. We have no colonies. It is therefore a waste of money to attempt to keep up an establishment that will compare with those of Europe. The same amount of money expended in all parts of the country in public buildings would give six buildings for postoffice or other purposes in each of the 325 congressional districts of the country. It would put a public building in every city in the country of a little over 5,000 inhabitants. This would distribute the surplus, give the government good buildings and be a benefit to the whole country. We do not wonder that the peace societies are petitioning congress against such vast expenditures of the public funds for such purposes. We are in more danger from ourselves than from foreign powers.

Verdict Against a Railroad.

PITTSBURG, February 20. The Post's Tiffin, Ohio, special says the investigation of the great Baltimore & Ohio wreck of January 4 has drawn to an end finally, and to-morrow morrow morning the verdict will be rendered by Coroner Sepper. The verdict is a very lengthy document, of which the following is synopsis, from an advance copy, which was received to-night

The coroner first finds that William Fredericks of Holgate, Ohio, J. M. Francis and Frank Irwin of Black Hand, Ohio; W. S. Pierce, Henry Postlethwaite and Spencer Postlethwaite of Wetzel county, West Virginia; M. H. Parks of Washington, D. C.; Frank D. Bowman of Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania; Thomas O. Pemberton of Payne, Ohio; Alvy B. Ice of Penfield, Illinois, John C. Gartner of Mechanicsville, and others whose names are unknown, came to their deaths by a collision on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad one-half mile west of the village of Republic, on January 4, 1887, at 2 o'clock a. m.

He also finds that freight engine No. 92 was in an unsafe and unserviceable condition, and that the officials of the road had been notified of this fact, but they still allowed it to be used. The engineer of the freight train, Edward S. Veller, was not intoxicated, as charged, but was worn out with sixteen hours and fifty minutes of continuous duty, with a green fireman and a poor engine. He had plenty of time to get to Republic from Seneca Siding, thirty-eight minutes for ten miles, but his engine was so poor and it leaked out so that the fires were put out and it died on the track at the point of collision. The conductor of the freight train, L. F. Fletcher, failed in his duty for not flagging the limited express, for he knew that the engine had died ten minutes before the express was due. The brakes on the express train were inferior and ineffective, for they failed to diminish the speed of forty-three miles an hour more than one-half in a distance of 1,000 feet.

The manner of heating and lighting cars of the express train were inferior, unsafe and dangerous, and contrary to the laws of the state of Ohio. Had this lighting and heating been proper, the cars would not have burned and the loss of life would have been very light.

"We, therefore, find that the above persons came to their death through gross negligence on the part of the officials and managers of the Chicago division of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad of Garrett, Indiana, and through the gross negligence of Conductor L. F. Fletcher in failing to signal the express train, and through gross negligence on the part of the owners, managers and officials of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company for using on the said express train inferior and ineffective brakes; also for using an improper, dangerous and unlawful manner of lighting and heating the cars of said express train. It would seem that such negligence as resulted in such great loss of life could not be other than criminal, but there are no laws in Ohio making such negligence a crime and no laws under which the persons can be charged with a crime."

Colorado Legislature

SENATE.

DENVER, February 21. In the senate to-day quite a number of bills were read and referred to appropriate committees.

The senate non-concurred in the house amendment to S. B. 43, which refers to a change in the form of signing deeds.

S. B. 134, to establish judicial districts and provide for holding courts therein was laid over.

S. B. 175, to establish water district 35, passed.

S. B. 149, relating to chattel mortgages, and 187, schools, were laid over.

S. B. 23, providing for paying George T. Clark and R. M. Stevenson $50 each for opening the sixth general assembly, passed.

S. B. 115, attendance of children at public schools, was indefinitely postponed.

S. B. 165, to establish round-up districts 24 and 25, passed.

S. B. 44, towns and cities, with emergency clause, passed.

H. B. 25, bureau of labor and statistics, also S. B. No. 119, amicable adjustment of grievances, and S. B. 274, division of water, and 27., water distribution, were laid over.

S. B. 213, for the sale of land to the United States for military post, and No. 257, providing for military post, were read and referred to committee.

S. B. 156, by Senator Poole, insurance bill restricting assessment companies, was read and referred to the committee on revision.

Adjourned to Wednesday morning.

HOUSE.

In the house the report of the Archuleta county investigating committee was read. The house ordered the report of the committee printed by a vote of 21 to 21, the speaker casting the deciding vote. The house refused to print the evidence taken by the committee by a vote of 20 to 19.

H. B. 149, by F. Q. Stuart, in relation to appeals, allowing and dissolving injunctions and issuing writs of prohibition and mandamus, received its third reading and final passage.

H. B. 177, by F. Q. Stuart, to prohibit blacklisting or publishing employes of private corporations when they shall have been discharged, received its third reading.

Mr. Noble offered an amendment prohibiting employes from conspiring against or boycotting a person or company. Referred to the committee on revision.

H. B. 211, by F. Q. Stuart, to provide for pay of a coroner's jury clerk the same as other jurymen, received its third reading and final passage.

The entire afternoon in the house was occupied in the discussion of bill 14, for the taxation of mines.

Bills 18, 339 and 275, all for the same purpose, were referred to the committee on mines and mining.

Adjourned to Wednesday morning, to-morrow being Washington's birthday.

McGlynn's Restoration

NEW YORK, February 20.—The belief that Dr. McGlynn will be reinstated in St. Stephen's church was the topic of conversation among the parishioners of that church to-day. It is said that Dr. McGlynn has received not only from many priests of the Roman Catholic church in this country and Europe, but also that he has letters from several cardinals and bishops commending his course and approving his strength of purpose in holding to his opinions on property in land, which are, they say, consistent with the doctrines of the church.

The theory that is now entertained by Dr. McGlynn's friends is that he will be reinstated as pastor of St. Stephen's, that he will return to his home in the rectory, and that he will then go to Rome. He will never go to Rome, it is said, unless he goes as pastor of St. Stephen's. The reinstatement of the doctor, it is believed, will take place before April 10th, which is Easter Sunday. Dr. McGlynn's health is steadily improving and he now goes out daily. Masses were not largely attended to day and the collections were small.

The Piegans' Reservation.

HELENA, Mont., February 20. An account of the signing of a treaty with the Piegans at the Blackfoot agency on February 10 has just been received. The reservation of the Piegans will be bounded as follows.—Commencing at the mouth of the Morals river, at the mouth of Cut-Bank creek, twenty miles due north to Canadian boundary; thence west to the crest of the main range of the Rocky mountains; then southerly on the old boundary line to a point west of the source of the north fork of Birch creek; thence to said north fork of Birch creek; thence east along the said north fork to the main channel of Birch creek; thence east to the Morals river, and thence east to the place of beginning.

The government is to pay $1,500,000 in ten equal annual payments. The treaty, if ratified, will open a vast country as well as a valuable section of timber land south of the north fork of Birch creek. It grants to all authorized railroads a right of way.

THE YANKEE.

Abstract of the Third Lecture in the Local Course.

The third lecture in the local course was delivered last evening at the Presbyterian church before a large audience.—Preceding the lecture Mr. Franc O. Wood gave a very entertaining organ recital which was heartily applauded.

Rev. James B. Gregg, pastor of the Congregational church, then delivered the lecture of the evening, his subject being the Yankee. The following is a brief abstract of the lecture:

Mr. Gregg, after alluding to his Yankee descent, which he regarded as a special qualification for lecturing on the Yankees, said:

Whence the Yankee got his name is one of those things which, as Lord Dundreary would say, no feller can find out. Some say the word is a corruption of Jankin, a diminutive of the Dutch Jan or John, meaning little John Bull, a nickname given to the English colonists of Connecticut by the Dutch settlers of New York. The Scotch phrase yankie, meaning a sharp, clever woman, is perhaps worth noticing as a possible derivation. There is a provincial English phrase, bow-yankies, meaning a kind of leggings worn by agricultural laborers. The more generally accepted derivation, however, is that the word is a corruption of the word English or French Anglais by the native Indians of America. But if the origin of the Yankee's name is obscure, the origin of the Yankee himself is illustrious.

After referring to the struggles of the Puritans in the mother country, their voyage to America and the early history of the colony of Massachusetts Bay, the speaker continued:

From such heroic strain the Yankee sprang. Time would fail me to trace in detail the process of his evolution. The story is familiar. To the Yankee state may be applied the words of her famous poet:

> We know what master laid thy keel,
> What workman wrought thy ribs of steel,
> What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
> In what a forge and what a heat
> Were shaped the anchors of thy hope.

Driven by religious persecution across the Atlantic to an inclement climate and a sterile soil, confronted there by wily and savage foes, involved in a long and harassing warfare with enemies and against the oppressive tyranny of their ancestral government, compelled at last a century and a half after their landing to take up arms against the mother country, the isolation of the New England colonist and his struggles with nature and man developed a race serious, thoughtful, keen, adventurous, self-reliant, humorous, thrifty, liberty-loving, brave and charitable. I propose this evening to illustrate these distinctive characteristics of the Yankee.

First then I note that the Yankee has always been marked by a certain seriousness of temper. He brought that over with him from the old country. The Englishman as compared with the races of the south has always taken life seriously.

After quoting from Wigglesworth's poem, "The Day of Doom," and referring to the popularity and extensive sale which it had, Mr. Gregg said:

When such a dread Deity was enthroned in the skies and religion was pervaded with such a strong tincture of horror, it is not strange the New England man should set his face as a flint against all frivolity. The early colonists boasted that none of the holidays of England had survived the passage of the Atlantic. Persons found observing Christmas "either by forbearing of labor, feasting, or any other way," were fined five shillings. Laws were passed against card playing and dancing. To this long systematic repression of the playful element in human nature is probably due the stiffness of the Yankee and his indifference to recreation.

But this Yankee seriousness has its nobler aspect. New England was founded by men deeply in earnest to make righteousness prevail; to this end "they scorned delights and lived laborious days." They transmitted to their descendants a disposition to regard life as a trust from God, to be sacredly administered to His glory and the benefit of mankind, and this brings us to notice the second characteristic of the Yankee, his thoughtfulness.

The Yankee has always believed in plain living and high thinking. This interesting fact may be noted that wherever Calvinism has wrought freely there intellectual vigor has been marked and there has been a "noble zeal to promote education, knowledge, learning in all their ranges, so that their elevating influence may be shared by all classes of the people."

After speaking of the early zeal which the New England colonists had for education and the founding of the Boston Latin school and Harvard college, the speaker continued,

This early zeal for education has never flagged, the Yankee has been the American nation's schoolmaster. The common school is a Yankee notion, so is the free library. It was on New England soil that normal schools, schools for deaf mutes, the blind, reform schools, schools of music, art, the lyceum lecture and many other forms of popular instruction first took root there to spread through the length and breadth of the land. The Yankee has always delighted in improving his mind. To the prominence given to preaching in the New England churches and to the peculiar quality of the preaching is doubtless due in no small measure the fact that there is scarcely a person of the first rank in American literature who is not either a Yankee, or of Yankee descent. The Yankee boy is born not commonly with a golden spoon in his mouth, but with a pen in his hand. He takes to books as naturally as a duck to water.

Another characteristic of the Yankee is enterprise. Planted on a sterile soil the Yankee has always had to scratch for a living and the scratching has made him cute and smart. The stony acres have been thoroughly delved and forced to do their utmost. Leaving the land the men along the shore have pierced the Arctic and Antarctic circles in the pursuit of the arduous but richly remunerative whale fishery. All know the prominence of New England in manufactures. It is an interesting fact "that ship building, the manufacture of textiles, boots, shoes and leather, printing, brick and glass-making, and iron-working industries which to day include half the entire product of Massachusetts were recognized industries within twenty years after Boston was settled."

Of the Yankee's enterprise as a financier I need hardly speak. There is immense wealth in that little corner of our national domains. Chicago is magnificent, but Chicago is owned in Boston. The stock of the great railroad corporations of the C., B. & Q., the A., T. & S. F. and the C. P. is very largely held in Massachusetts. A larger proportion of the national debt is held in Massachusetts than in any state of the union. The great west has been to a very great extent developed by Yankee brains and Yankee capital.

The Yankee is not only enterprising but thrifty. Selfish men and women bred in the Yankee atmosphere have presented to the world the repulsive type of the grasping, sordid, over-reaching, stingy nature, which has made the word "Yankee" a byword and a reproach. Doubtless the Yankee has always been good at a trade. It is true that the people of New England have not been as free in their style of living and as much disposed to hospitality as the people in some other sections of our country. But the reasons for this are not far to seek. The sterility of the soil has made the cost of provisions always high, and this has been a bar in the way of the free hospitality which is exercised in regions where food is plenty and cheap. And now let me say that if the Yankee is thrifty he cannot justly be accused of being stingy. I venture to say that nowhere upon the earth's surface is so much money given away in proportion to the population every year in charity as in Boston and Hartford. The rich men of Massachusetts have been lavish in their benefactions at home and abroad. They have not piled up their money to gloat over, nor spent it in extravagance of living which should make the common herd stare and envy. But they have been rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate. Thomas a Kempis says: "He is truly great who is great in charity," so the greatness of the Yankee needs no indication, the world is his monument.

Mr. Gregg next took up the Yankee's love of humor and related several droll stories and anecdotes which the audience greatly enjoyed. In closing he said:

"I must not close this sketch of the Yankee without naming one of his salient and glorious qualities—his inborn and inbred love of liberty. It was the desire to worship God freely after the dictates of their own consciences, which brought the pilgrim fathers to the bleak New England. The compact signed upon the Mayflower, says Bancroft, "was the truth of popular constitutional liberty." This heritage of liberty in church and state has been carefully preserved and hardly defaced through the ages since. Was not Faneuil hall the cradle of American liberty?

The Yankee, serious, thoughtful, deeply religious, keen, upright, adventurous, self-reliant, thrifty, charitable, humorous, liberty-loving and brave, I have set him before you to-night in such representative men as John Winthrop, Benjamin Franklin, Daniel Webster, Nathaniel Hawthorne, George Peabody, Henry W. Longfellow, R. W. Emerson and James Russell Lowell.

Mr. Gregg closed his lecture with several of Emerson's lines on Boston "that happy town beside the sea."

To day being Washington's birthday there will be placed in the window of L. C. Davis' jewelry store some very interesting relics commemorative of the day. They consist of a copy of the Ulster County Gazette, published at Kingston, N. Y., and dated January 4, 1800. The paper has turned rules in respect to the memory of the patriot hero who died on December 14, 1799. It will thus be seen how many days it took the news to reach Kingston from Washington. There are also a medal which was presented to Washington while he was general of the continental army, and one of the 18 pennies which were struck off in 1791 and which were sent to him for his approval or rejection. He rejected them on the ground that his head was placed on one side of the piece, as he did not desire such notoriety. A flag which has been carried to the top of the Maryland Heights, Bunker Hill monument, Pike's Peak, and which was at City Point, Bermuda Hundreds and other noted localities will be also exhibited in the window.

McFadden's Boston Double Uncle Tom's Cabin, to appear at the opera house next Monday evening, will give the entire version and play of this great drama. There will be five acts and the great Vermont scene between the Deacon and Aunt Ophelia, Gumption Cute and Topsy, the auction and slave scene, the Mississippi steamboat and levee scene, and all the original acts same as produced by this mammoth company in New York and Boston. The company will bring their own scenery, colored singers, two trick donkeys and six monster blood hounds. Speaking of the company the Topeka Capitol says: If we are to have Uncle Tom's Cabin, by all means let us have McFadden's double company. The performance given by that company last evening without doubt is the best we have ever witnessed.

The Alamo Arrivals—J. N. Neil, St. Joe; Charles M. Thombs, Denver; E. F. Draper and wife, city; J. D. Whitehurst, Salida; Jas. Brown, Pueblo; George Sharrock and family, Summit Park, A. D. Five-Million Gun Factory.

WASHINGTON, February 21.—The military committee of the house has agreed upon a bill appropriating five million dollars for a gun factory for heavy ordnance, mortars and torpedoes, to be expended under direction of a board to be appointed by the president.

Lackawanna Meeting.

NEW YORK, February 21. The annual meeting of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad was held to-day. The old board of directors was re-elected with the exception of W. W. Phelps, who is succeeded by W. W. Astor. Reports of the year's business show that 7,164,209 tons of coal were transported, against 6,711,634 tons in the preceding year. The gross floating debt at the end of the year was $8,609,009, of which $5,122,859 has already been paid, being interest, wages, etc., due in January.

QUEEN OF SOUBRETTES.

Lotta's First Appearance in the Colorado Springs Opera House.

Charming little Lotta, the brightest of soubrettes, sang and laughed her way into the favor of one of the largest audiences that has assembled in the opera house for some time. That all who attended last evening's performance were well pleased goes without saying. They were in fact delighted with the entertainment provided them by the bright little star.

Though Lotta has never appeared in Colorado Springs before she was by no means a stranger to a large part of her audience some of whom have seen her quite a number of times. Time appears to have dealt very lightly with her for she is the same vivacious and lively little woman that she was fifteen years ago when as even now she held a high place in the esteem and affection of American theatre goers.

It can be truthfully said that there is no soubrette on either the American or European stage who can compare with her. Minnie Palmer, Patti Rosa, and Judic, the French soubrette, while they have achieved notable success in their respective roles, have never won their way to the hearts of their auditors as Lotta invariably does.

The distinguishing characteristic of her acting, if it might be termed such, is the wonderful control which she exercises in her conceptions of the various moods and caprices which the characters which she presents undergo. She is the possessor of a charming abandon, but she never allows it to carry her beyond the limits of self-control, or to even transgress the bounds of strict propriety. Judic does not possess this power of self-control, but it gives to Lotta's acting its greatest charm. It would be useless to attempt any extended criticism of Musette, which she presented last evening. It was written for Lotta and Lotta is Musette.

The support which Lotta received from the members of her company was exceptionally good. Two of the ladies were suffering from bad colds which materially interfered with the effective rendition of their lines, but the audience, however, appreciated the difficulties under which they labored, and many favorable remarks were made as to the manner in which they acquitted themselves under the circumstances.

Special mention should, however, be made of Fred Lennox as Billy Bokus who convulsed the audience at his every appearance on the stage. As an imitator of the overgrown, but intellectually small boy, Mr. Lennox is hard to surpass. His ludicrous make-up, together with his facial expressions, were irresistibly funny and his duet with Lotta in the last act brought down the house. The remainder of the cast were well adapted to the characters which they assumed and the play was presented without a single hindrance or jar.

The orchestra, under the directorship of Mr. M. O. Barnes, has greatly improved, and last evening rendered several excellent selections, the merit of which the audience were quick to appreciate.

Greenbackers' Convention.

CINCINNATI, February 21. The national committee of the greenback party met this morning at the Burnet house with H. H. Gillette of Iowa in the chair and a fair attendance of members and others. Schilling of Wisconsin opened the discussion with a proposition to declare the greenback party dissolved at once so as to unite untrammeled in the formation of a new party, which is to be organized at the convention which meets to-morrow. This proposition was very generally opposed by all who spoke, not so much because of objection to its spirit but to its form. It was urged that this committee at this meeting has not power to dissolve the party. It was also urged that if it had clear power it would not be good policy to exercise it until after the coming convention has submitted its principles. These views prevailed and a committee was appointed to report to this committee on the matter after adjournment of the convention.

Henry George arrived to-day and was escorted to his hotel by a delegation from the Henry George club. He will speak to-day at Music hall, but he is in no way connected with the convention which meets to-morrow noon, nor are there any representatives yet present from the New York George club to take part in the convention.

Our stock will be very materially increased for the year, and for elegance, greatest variety and lowest prices will not be excelled west of the Missouri river. Our manufacturing department is growing rapidly in favor. In the manufacturing of specialties to "your idea" during the past year's rush, not a single item has been left on our hands, which fact is a sufficient guarantee of the superior knowledge and taste of our upholsterer. Beyond question he is the finest and most practical upholsterer in the city, having learned his trade to perfection in the old country. We guarantee perfect satisfaction in quality, artistic design and price of every item of upholstering or cabinet work

Bear in mind that we will, as usual, rule the low prices for the year. Respectfully, b 22 tf FAIRLEY BROS.

BEST ROUTE EAST—THROUGH TRAINS.

Passengers for Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and all eastern points can save from four to six hours by taking what is known as Salt Lake train on D. & R. G. at 8 p. m. arriving in Denver in ample time to connect with through train on Burlington road. No change of cars from Denver to Chicago. Only line running through baggage cars; this is a decided advantage over any train leaving this city for the east in time and comfort. Sleeper accommodations reserved and tickets sold by J. M. Ellison, agent D. & R. G. R'y., Colorado Springs. George H. Crosby, general agent, F. B Semple, travelling agent, Denver.
